Providing vision without sight

Dear Friends,

Promoting independence...it's what we do every day at the Council, and it's what we have done for 58 years, for Wisconsin residents who are blind or visually impaired.

People from every walk of life and from every part of the state turn to the Council for help and hope. By 2030, the estimated number of visually impaired Americans 65 and older will double to seven million. In Wisconsin alone, a National Institutes of Health survey notes that there are approximately 100,000 blind and visually impaired individuals. As our population ages, the demand for our free and low-cost services will grow dramatically.

We remain committed to providing powerful tools for independence. As a private, non-profit organization, our mission is paramount to who we are. This annual report shares with you our impact in Wisconsin, the services we offer, and how we change lives for people with low or no vision.

To learn more about our mission and vision and ways you can support them, we encourage you to visit www.wcblind.org or call 608-255-1166.

Thank you for your generosity and confidence in our work!

Sincerely,

Christopher Zenchenko
Council President

Loretta A. Himmelsbach
Executive Director

The Council coordinates a Speaker's Bureau, and we always appreciate the opportunity to share information and insights about blindness or vision loss. Educational presentations are at no cost to schools, community organizations, low vision support groups, churches, clubs and a wide variety of other organizations.

Scholarships to Support Educational Goals

Free White Canes

Persons who are blind or visually impaired are eligible to receive one free white cane a year from the Council. All canes are available — rigid or folding.

Vision Services

Low Vision Services

Through a low vision evaluation, individuals learn how to maximize their remaining vision and use lighting effectively for reading and other near-vision tasks. An evaluation includes:

- Assessment of visual abilities.
- Instruction in the use of residual vision.
- Application of optical and non-optical aids for daily living, leisure, social, vocational and educational tasks.
- Information about lighting, magnification, and color and contrast to support remaining vision.

A stipend may be available to help with transportation costs to Madison for a low vision evaluation.

Vision Rehabilitation Services

With the guidance of a vision rehab specialist, individuals learn to live with confidence and independence through strategies and techniques, adaptive products or assistive technologies, and/or environmental adaptations. Services include ways to:

- Live and work safely and independently.
- Modify one's environment and use compensatory techniques and adaptive products to enhance daily living activities (personal care, reading, writing, communication, home management, leisure, social, vocational, and educational tasks).
- Locate and utilize community resources.
- Adjust to changing vision.

Orientation and Mobility

Orientation is knowing where you are, where you've been, and where you're going. Mobility is the set of physical skills required to move through the environment. Orientation and mobility services teach how to travel safely and as independently as possible. They include:

- Techniques to orient one's self in space and plan movement options.
- Instruction in safe and independent travel skills.
- Use of white cane for indoor and outdoor travel.
- Use of public transportation.
- Orientation to routes to and from home, community locations, work, or school.

Gary's Story of Independence

Gary D. from Baraboo was diagnosed with Retinitis Pigmentosa (RP) in 1982. Between 1995 and 2000, his RP progressed to the point that he couldn't see faces or distinguish colors. "I had to quit my job of 21 years and seek help so I could adjust to my vision loss." Gary turned to the Council and discovered a goldmine of resources.

A white cane and orientation and mobility training from the Council gave Gary the independence and confidence he needed to continue his very active life. He also received assistive technology training from our staff that enhanced his ability to communicate with his new work clients.

Gary is just one example of the people the Council helps, day in and day out. We are able to provide these and other free or low-cost services thanks to contributions from friends and supporters.

Our mission is to promote the dignity and independence of people in Wisconsin who are blind and visually impaired by providing services, advocating legislation, and educating the general public.
